1. Hardware Trojans in wireless cryptographic ICs

Accession number: 11136017

Authors: Jin, Y. (1); Makris, Y. (1)
Author affiliation: (1) Yale Univ., New Haven, CT, United States

Source title: IEEE Design & Test of Computers
Abbreviated source title: IEEE Des. Test Comput. (USA)
Volume: 27
Issue: 1
Publication date: Jan.-Feb. 2010
Pages: 26-35
Language: English
ISSN: 0740-7475
CODEN: IDTCEC
Document type: Journal article (JA)
Publisher: IEEE Computer Society
Country of publication: USA
Material Identity Number: CL78-2010-001

Abstract: The article studies the problem of hardware Trojans in wireless cryptographic ICs. The objective is to design Trojans to leak secret information through the wireless channel. The authors investigate challenges related to detection for such Trojans and propose using statistical analysis of the side-channel signals to help detect them.

Number of references: 12
Inspec controlled terms: cryptography - integrated circuit design - invasive software - microprocessor chips - statistical analysis
Uncontrolled terms: hardware Trojans - wireless cryptographic IC - integrated circuits - statistical analysis - side-channel signal detection
Inspec classification codes: B6120D Cryptography - B2570A Semiconductor integrated circuit design, layout, modelling and testing - B1265F Microprocessors and microcomputers - C6130S Data security - C5130 Microprocessor chips - C1140Z Other topics in statistics
Treatment: Practical (PRA)
Discipline: Electrical/Electronic engineering (B); Computers/Control engineering (C)
DOI: 10.1109/MDT.2010.21
IPC Code: G06F15/76 - G06F21/00 - H04L9/00
Database: Inspec

Data Provider: Engineering Village